October 2016

From Our New Pastor, Bill Stone

The author of Ecclesiastes reminds us that there is a time for everything and a season for every activity under the sun. In this season of transition when we welcomed a new baby into our family and prepared for an international move, these words (and the song they inspired) keep running through my head.

Moments of change and transition are challenging. When we step away from familiar routines, places and people, it makes us much more aware of how vulnerable we are. This is especially true when we don't have control over the change as it happens.

This is one of the big reasons so many ancient cultures studied the skies and tracked the changing seasons. Their livelihood depended on being able to grow and harvest enough crops to survive the winter and support their families. We see remnants of this agrarian lifestyle today in our American celebration of Thanksgiving, and over in Scotland, school children are still given two weeks of "tattie holidays" every October. In previous generations, they would have spent these two weeks in the fields harvesting potatoes alongside their parents and older siblings.

For most of us, a change in the seasons is no longer a matter of life and death, but we still experience many other moments of transition and change that can quickly remind us how much of life lies beyond our immediate control: the birth of a child, the death of a loved one, an unexpected illness, and even starting a new job.

In these moments we, like our ancestors, sometimes look to the skies for some indication of reason or meaning—a pattern to help us make sense of things. These seasons challenge us, but they also offer an invitation. It is in these moments of transition that we can encounter God in new and unexpected ways. These encounters can have a powerful and lasting impact that allows us to see our normal lives and routines in a different light and empowers/enables us to go deeper in our relationships with God and with one another.

Our church has been in a time of transition and change for a while now, and as a church family you have all had the chance to reflect on where God has been at work in and through the congregation. You have also had many unique opportunities to provide leadership and pastoral care to one another and to the community. As we begin a new season together, I look forward to reflecting with you on this experience and wondering where God might be inviting us to grow and serve in the years ahead.

- Collecting photos of members: email photos to membership.pcnv@gmail.com so that we can have an informal membership directory ready for Bill Stone to use for reference.
- Committee reviewing and updating the membership packet with Bill Stone’s information. Would like to have a link to the membership packet on the website.

Mission & Outreach (Jonathan Shelby):

- Mental Health fall dinner scheduled for Tues., October 25 in Chorba Hall. Sign-up at Coffee Hour.

Congregational Life

Do you enjoy planning social events and providing opportunities for friends and family to celebrate with one another? Then Congregational Life is the perfect place for you to become involved at FPCNV. We plan and implement several opportunities each year for our congregation to come together in community and fellowship. Such events as this year's Welcome Luncheon, the Christmas Luncheon and the Church Picnic are all sponsored by Congregational Life.

If joining the Committee seems like too large a commitment right now, perhaps you could help with one of our events. We always need assistance with set up, clean-up, shopping for and cooking food and refreshments, Decorations, etc. Many hands make light work, and it is a great chance to get to know some dedicated members of your church family. Even the smallest contribution helps! Reach out to Meg Richardson, current chair of Congregational Life if interested:

My Life on the Road* by Gloria Steinem

“My Life on the Road is the moving, funny, and profound story of Gloria’s growth and also the growth of a revolutionary movement for equality—and the story of how surprising encounters on the road shaped both.

From her first experience of social activism among women in India to her work as a journalist in the 1960s; from the whirlwind of political campaigns to the founding of Ms. magazine; from the historic 1977 National Women’s Conference to her travels through Indian Country—a lifetime spent on the road allowed Gloria to listen and connect deeply with people, to understand that context is everything, and to become part of a movement that would change the world.

In prose that is revealing and rich, Gloria reminds us that living in an open, observant, and ‘on the road’ state of mind can make a difference in how we learn, what we do, and how we understand each other.”

FOREIGN AFFAIRS IN PRESIDENTIAL POLITICS

September 25

Far too often the role of foreign policy and world affairs is minimized as a factor in the election of American presidents. Douglas Simon, emeritus professor of political science at Drew University who specializes in national security, will lay out potential scenarios on the global stage and demonstrate that foreign affairs have historically been critical in the electoral process and factor into the 2016 campaign. In addition to The Challenge of Politics, he is coauthor of New Thinking and Developments in International Politics: Opportunities and Dangers and has contributed to numerous publications focused on international affairs.

THE ROLE OF OUTSIDERS IN THE 2016 PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

November 13

Dr. J Perry Leavell, professor of history emeritus at Drew, will provide clarity as we take stock of the 2016 presidential election and its results. He will consider the historical context for such extra-party factions as the Tea Party, Occupy Wall Street, and the political movement spearheaded by Bernie Sanders, as well as offering insights into the influence these movements may have in the future. A highly popular speaker with a wide following in the area, Dr. Leavell lectures frequently on the American presidency and has written histories on James Madison, Harry S. Truman, and Woodrow Wilson.

In addition to her private practice, she provides professional development workshops and consultations to other therapists. Cindy has been extensively trained at the Meadows in Arizona, recognized internationally for their work in childhood trauma, codependence, and addiction. Childcare will be provided.

FAITH IN A DIVIDED WORLDFebruary 26

Rev. Larissa Kwong Abazia, Director of Church Relations at Princeton Theological Seminary, will lead a lively conversation exploring ways people of faith struggle to live in the world, but not of it. The challenges before us seem to grow daily: racism, war, prejudice, violence, and divisions among people—us versus them. What is the Church's place in reducing this confusion? How can faith inform ways that we engage in the important work of transforming the world around us? Larissa is a member of the Committee on Representation for the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and recently served as Vice Moderator of the 221st General Assembly.

UNDERSTANDING THE MIDDLE EASTMarch 26

Dr. Brid Nicholson, an engaging and informative associate professor of history at Kean University with a particular interest in social and cultural history, will consider the latest political and military developments in the middle East. Be it Syria, Israel, or Egypt, she will place these events in their historical context and offer insights into what lies behind the various and escalating conflicts. A native of Ireland, Nicholson received her Ph. D. from Drew and now teaches Irish, American, and Middle Eastern history at Kean.
